Fears, Foes and Faeries at Scarborough Art Gallery

23 March - 30 September

This year I will be working with Scarborough Museums Trust in response to their collection of amulets and superstitious objects. I will be producing new work for showcase alongside the superb Fears, Foes and Fairies exhibition and running a two day jewellery and artefact workshop across Saturday 12th and 26th May. This collaboration is particularly thrilling for me as I have had access to the Museum stores and their extensive collection of witchcraft artefacts and charms collected by curator William James Clarke between 1913 and 1945.

I will also be running a one day found object jewellery workshop at the Platform Gallery alongside my Curiosity Cabinet exhibition where participants are invited to bring their own keepsakes and magpie finds for transformation into unique narrative jewellery using wire and simple metalsmithing techniques. See website for further information and contact Grace Whowell for reservation details, platform.gallery@ribblevalley.gov.uk
